LAST MEETING (February 23rd)

Half-Masted 3.2

Half-Masted 3.2, the Cedar Valley's own special comedy improvisational troupe, performed for the club. The six-year-old troupe is instructed and directed by Doug Shaw, UNI associate professor of mathematics. Members perform a weekly family-friendly show every Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the Cedar Falls Public Library; a mature-audiences show at the end of every semester at the University; and private shows, seminars and team-building workshops throughout Iowa. Shaw has performed with several improv troupes throughout the Midwest, including the Impossible's, the house troupe of a long-running Minneapolis variety show called "Look Ma, No Pants!" He said he has studied under many "esteemed improv instructors" who taught various styles of improv. The current troupe members are Miranda Pratt, a senior communications major from Bonaparte; Drew Hingtgen, a sophomore nursing major from Cedar Rapids; Larissa Pray, a senior elementary education major from Des Moines; Joe Veltri, a senior social science teaching major from Emmetsburg; Tonia Tessum, a junior elementary and early childhood education major from Everly; Tanner Randall, a sophomore theatre major from Guttenberg; Analize Blumel, a freshman social work major from Kalona; and, recent UNI graduate Lauren Walker from Dubuque, who holds B.A. and M.S.W. degrees from UNI in social work.
